COUNTRY REPRESENTATION AT THE 37TH YEAR OF AGROFILM

This year, filmmakers from 24 countries, 5 continents and a total of 98 films have remained loyal to the "Agrofilm" brand, or have just discovered it.

The offer was rich and the filmmakers confirmed that attractive themes can also be found in the barn, in the field, in the forest, in the sea, in the soil or on the branch. This year, topics such as responsible land use, conservation, restoration of food resources, sustainable farming on large scale, but also in small gardens, resonated, including the question of whether hunting makes sense.

This year's Agrofilm 2021 International Film Festival once again passed the test of perseverance, resilience, courage and the ability of the organizers to ensure a full-fledged festival week even during the third wave of the pandemic.

From the comfort of their homes, viewers could see almost all the films submitted to the 37th Agrofilm.

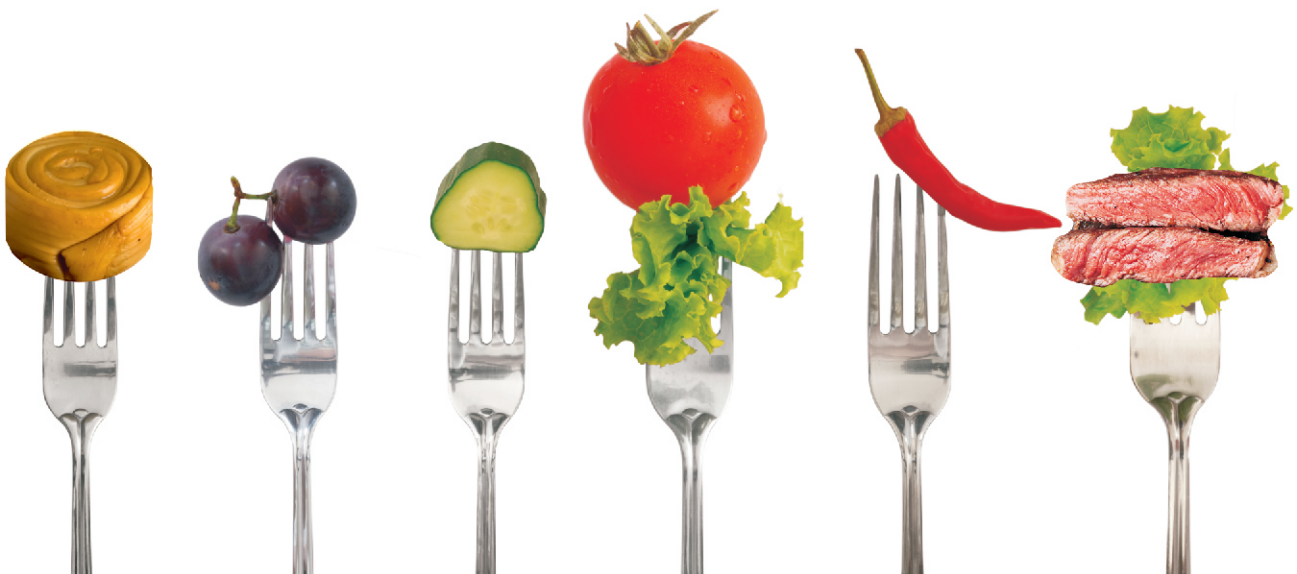

It was screened traditionally from Monday to Saturday, also online. The audience could watch a total of 44 hours of quality film documentaries online at www.agrofilm.sk in the morning, in the evening and a night film club was prepared for the persevering.

DISCUSSION FORUM

Viewers could see almost all the films entered for the 37th Agrofilm from the comfort of their homes, for a total of 44 hours of online screenings. At the same time, they were able to watch live and ask questions at a discussion forum on the topic of Land Adjustment. Every year, this accompanying festival event has its integral place on Wednesday on the grounds of NPPC in Lužianky.

Emil Macho - Chairman of SPPK, Róbert Čalfa - General Director of the MPRV SR Section, Jozef Kožár - Surveyor, Slovak Chamber of Land Adjustments and Peter Minich - Farmer and Deputy Mayor of Prestavky - discussed the landscaping.

The main prize of the festival went to a German film produced by BBC Studios "Extinction of Species - Facts", which reveals the astonishing results of scientific research of 450 leading scientists. We are in the midst of the global mass extinction of millions plant and animal species. How to slow down this thousand-fold accelerated manifestation of evolution? What does this mean for humanity? These questions, as well as the answers, were processed by director Charlotte Lathane, who also receives a symbolic financial contribution of EUR 2,000 for further work at the festival.
